

Author Guidelines

Relevant Tomorrow, a Diamond Open Access peer-reviewed bilingual periodical aimed at promoting academic dialogue and interdisciplinary relations in the social sciences and humanities, is published by the Martynas Mažvydas National Library of Lithuania from 2021.

The journal's focus and scope include: media and information literacy, security of the information environment, methodology and applied research in communication and information sciences, digitization and digital publishing, library science and bibliography, interdisciplinary reading research, actualization of the documentary heritage, and research in the field of history of culture and Lithuanian studies. The journal also publishes reviews and annotations of monographs and studies published in Lithuania and abroad relevant to the thematic scope of the publication.

Structure of the Manuscript. The journal accepts manuscripts written only in English. The manuscript text file should contain elements that are requisite for a research work: a) introduction indicating the relevance, goal, objectives, method, and sources of the research as well as scope of previous research into the subject; b) the part presenting the theoretical and / or empirical research; c) conclusions; d) footnotes; and e) literature. The parts can have titles and subtitles. The submissions are subject to double-blind peer-review by two scholars.

The manuscript's text should be presented in the following order:

- author's name and surname;
